

About Hope Seeds

Hope Seeds is a small but committed seed company based in Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia, with a dedication to local and sustainable agriculture since our beginning in 1994. Now, more than 20 years later, we continue to build on the original vision of founder Kim Edmondson of Keswick Ridge, New Brunswick: Passion for seed saving; commitment to sustainable agriculture; and securing local food systems for future generations.

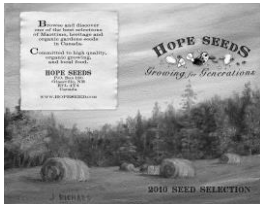

We offer organic and locally-grown garden seeds of vegetables, flowers, herbs, seed potatoes, Jerusalem artichokes and garlic. Many varieties are old-time heirlooms with connections to local Maritime families and communities – we share their stories with the seeds. We encourage folks to not only grow their own food and flowers (food for pollinators!), but to save their own seeds as part of a sustainable local food movement.

Artwork & Creative Projects

We love being able to show off the art, work and skills of people in our community. Some of the talented folks behind the scenes include:

- Artists from Nova Scotia and New Brunswick featured on the cover of our seed catalogues.
- Packaging and logo artwork by Leland Wong-Daugherty of South Knowlesville, NB.
- Custom seed cleaning equipment and retail display racks made by Fallsbrook Woodworking.
- Stickers and custom woodworking from Carleton Industries, NS.
- Cards and notes beautified by sketches and paintings.
